During the period covered by this report, the District of Columbia has continued to make significant progress in the development of its economy and the improvement of its social services. The District's economy has shown a steady upward trend, with a significant increase in the number of jobs created. The District's social services have also improved, with a significant increase in the number of people receiving services. The District's government has continued to work hard to improve the lives of its citizens, and we are confident that the future is bright for the District of Columbia.

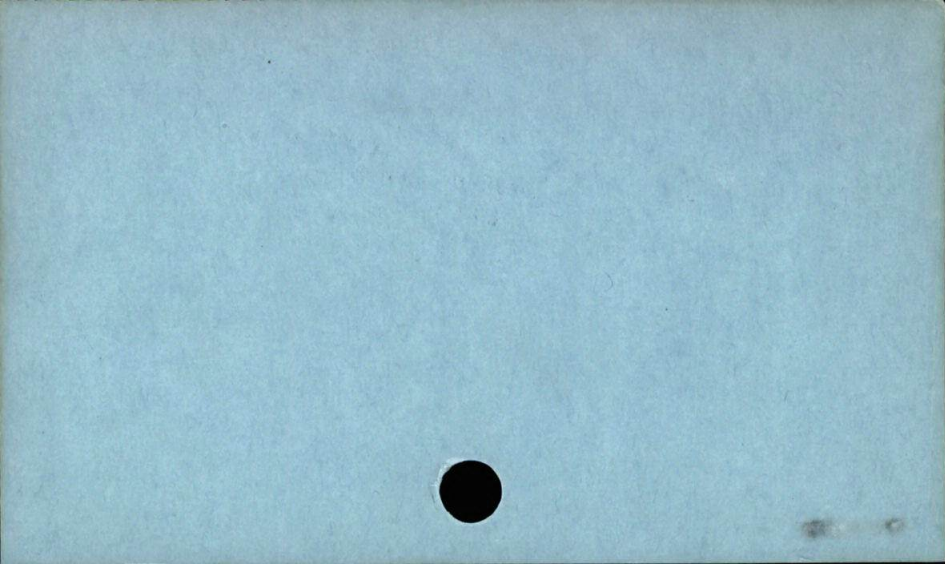

The District of Columbia has a long and proud history, and we are proud to be a part of it. We are committed to the future of the District, and we are committed to the people of the District. We are committed to the values of freedom, justice, and equality, and we are committed to the principles of democracy. We are committed to the future of the District, and we are committed to the people of the District.

The first of the year was a very dry one and the crops were much injured by the drought. The wheat was very poor and the corn was also much injured. The cattle and sheep were also much injured by the drought. The farmers were very much distressed and the government
gave them some help.

... The oath of a free-man ... With a historical study by Lawrence C. Wroth and A note on the Stephen Daye press by Melbert B. Cary, jr. New York, 1939.

[18] p. 22^{cm}.

At head of title: Press of the woolly whale.

"In here reproducing the text of the Oath of a free-man as it might originally have appeared [in 1639], I have selected the Janson type ... As for the typographic arrangement, this is based on models of the period, with the purpose of presenting the text in a format similar to that which Stephen Daye probably used."—A note on the Stephen Daye press, by M. B. Cary, jr., p. [18]
